TODAY IS THE REGATTA

Ready for the Regatta Day!

Today is the day for the aquatic sports in the harbor of Honolulu, when all Honolulu and the strangers within the midst thereof go to the waterfront and enjoy a day of good, clean sport.

The training practically came to an end on Thursday for the boat races—senior, junior, freshmen and pair-oared—and the crews are confidently awaiting the signal which will send them out on the harbor this morning for victory or defeat. It will be a day for the display of the Red and Blue, and Blue and the Red. The two boat-houses will keep open house to their friends all day, and music and light refreshments will be on hand for their entertainment. If, as in the past, the shipping in the harbor is dressed, the effect will be magical.

But the knowing ones creased their foreheads yesterday when a still breeze blew off shore, and ruffled the harbor. "If that sort of weather keeps up, there will be poor boat racing, for it'll swamp the shells, but it will be great for the yachts," said one old to the business.

Everything that can float will be on the harbor—shells, yachts, launches, row boats, whaleboats, sampans—and there is little doubt that the waterfront will be lined deeply with spectators. But a feature will be sorely missed and that will be Bandmaster Berger and the Hawaiian Band.

As to expectancies, of course, Sam Walker of the Healanis looks for a Blue-color day and Tom King looks equally confident for a Red-color day. And so it will be Red and Blue.

At 10 o'clock the first event will be started. It will be Big-lunged W. T. Monsarrat's duty to keep the schedule rolling along.

Here are some general rules which the Regatta Committee has posted: The numbers on the sails of the yachts correspond with the numbers opposite the name on the program.

The start in all yacht races will be made from an imaginary line extending from the Lighthouse to the Healanis boathouse; the finish will be an imaginary line from the judges' boat to Wilder's S. S. Co. wharf.

The start in all the yacht races will be made by the "one gun start," i. e., a preparatory gun followed by another five minutes later. All time to be taken from the last gun. All yachts failing to comply with the foregoing regulations will be barred.

There must be at least three boats

MAY BE LAST GAME

It's the Elks and H. A. C.s again at the league baseball grounds this afternoon. The two teams will come together, maybe, for the last time this season. If the H. A. C.s win, it will finish the season's ball playing. If the Elks win, there will be one more game, and that will be the last, and that game will decide the championship.

There will be a hot contest on the diamond today, and it will be well worth while for the fans to get out there and take it in. Joy will pitch for the H. A. C.s, of course, and Hampton will probably pitch for the Elks.

Length of Golf Course.

Golfers, like doctors, differ on many important points. The former find it impossible to argue on the proper length of a full course. Of the hundreds of links in this country no two courses, be they nine or eighteen holes, can be found of exactly the same length.

There are a few circuits ridiculously short, generally the result of limited land facilities. They have rarely been confined to the cramped limitations through preference. Some of the eighteen-hole courses that continue to flourish were laid out a decade ago, when their playing length of 5000-odd yards were considered nothing unusual. The advent of the rubber-cored ball has done much toward bringing about a revolution in golf course construction.

Talk and write as the critics will, about all the matches being won and lost on the green, it is an unmistakable fact that the long game claims the greatest following. As the autolst glories in speeding his machine for every yard possible to the limit, so does the golfer strive for every yard possible from the tee. There's a chance 890 from the tee. There's a charm in this effort to annihilate distance—hence the ever-increasing demand for longer courses. In giving his opinion on the proper length of the course one prominent player said:

"In my opinion a course, providing the holes are sufficiently varying in length, should not be much over 6000 yards. Take it where the links extend over a monotonously flat country and at times with the ground baked out almost as hard as a brick, the only way to give a man any brassy work is to have some very long holes, considerably over 400 yards. I think the craze for extremely long courses, however, has about reached its limit."

In many localities it is no uncommon thing to see links woefully one-sided—that is, a long out play and a short home journey, or vice versa. This, in the opinion of experts, is all wrong. The out and in totals should be as nearly equal as possible. With a properly bunkered course, or one where the trouble is properly placed, there is little need for a succession of long, tiresome holes.

Cricket Today.
